

2 CONVENTIONS

Chicago Must Have Both the Democratic National Convention and the Republican National Convention Next Year.

Chicago must have two national conventions next year.

It is the only big city with a summer convention climate.

Don't forget that.

And it has the accommodations for a convention that no other city can boast of.

Don't forget that, either.

In the meantime Chicago people are going to work hard to bring both National Conventions here. A guarantee fund has to be raised first, and Fred W. Upham, who is chairman of the committee on finances, started out to get subscriptions. There is a committee of twenty-one in charge of the work of raising the necessary money. There are seven republicans, seven democrats and seven members of the Chicago Association of Commerce on the committee to make it a wholly non-partisan project. It is agreed that only one-half of the money subscribed will be collected in the event that Chicago gets only one of the big conventions.

"We want both of them, and it will be the best business proposition Chicago has undertaken in years," said Mr. Upham. "We might entertain one convention for $100,000, whereas the cost of taking care of both conventions probably would not exceed $160,000. With two conventions there could be a saving of $40,000 in arranging the convention hall, etc. The finance committee that has been appointed will in no way conflict with the strong committees that have been appointed—one by the Hamilton club and the other by Charles Boeschstein, democratic national committee-man—to bring the conventions to Chicago after the money is raised."

The members of the nonpartisan finance committee which has been appointed by Charles L. Dering, president of the Association of Commerce, are: Fred W. Upham, Charles H. Hermann, Charles L. Dering, John W. Eckhart, D. R. Forgan, Angus S. Hubbard, Samuel Insull, J. L. Kesner, James A. Patten, John Barton Payne, Francis S. Peabody, Fred L. Rossbach, John C. Roth, Frank L. Shepard, James Simpson, John F. Smulski, Henry Stuckart, Roger C. Sullivan, William Hale Thompson, Thomas J. Webb, Roy O. West.

The City should be redistricted at once, according to law. The wards should be equalized according to population. The First ward only has 50,682 inhabitants, while the Twenty-seventh has 94,360. Six of the wards contain 75,000 people. The Fifteenth has 80,532; the Twenty-fifth has 86,
